

Police Equipment

Police use many tools when investigating a crime, a magnifying glass is one of them. A magnifying glass makes things look larger so the officer can see more detail.

Connect the dots - starting with #1 - to see what this police officer is looking at.

Fingerprints

Our fingers have ridges called arches, loops and whorls - patterns that are unique to each person. No two patterns are alike; even identical twins will have different fingerprints. Our skin secretes oils that leave an impression of those patterns on objects we touch. Police apply a fine powder to the prints that makes them visible so they can examine the patterns and match the fingerprint to the suspect.